I've watched my parents and parents inlaw die an agonizing death under the palliative care umbrella and they all requested a choice to choose the end of life time. Assisted voluntary dying would have saved the suffering they all went through. Until it comes to watching your loved ones slowly dying knowing they just want an end to their life then the pro life palliative care supporters don't have a complete understanding of the need for VAD. When my time comes I want the choice, it's my life not a life dictated by other people.
