I feel this is a must, seeing your family pass with no dignity was very hard to see, My father was a cattle producer loved his property at Injune Qld ,developed Motor Nurone in 1991, it was April 1991 when we noticed his speech was slurred by May he was diagnosed by August his movement had deteriorated to the point of aids to help him, January 7th nine months later he passed away at the age of 63 years, back then no one knew much about this awful disease/ illness, and what it does to ones body, mind. A man trapped in his own body and could do nothing about it, the sad part was he knew what was going on around him his mind was sound, he could see, here, but no speech, he loss the control to movement,bathroom, eating, all food made into a smoothie to suck thru a straw, could not write as this took over his body, and watched wile his wife took care of him at home , and the property in drought at the time right up till his last day of life, as his breathing was failing luckily he was taken to hospital at lunch time and passed that afternoon, So my opinion patients /people family should not have to go through this , when in reality there is no hope for them to lead a full life,
