I am against this bill. I don't believe that anyone wants to die. When someone is sick, they can't think clearly. Sometimes they are in such a vulnerable state that a person will agree with a doctor or others just to keep the peace. Sometimes a person doesn't even know what they're agreeing to. I know my mother didn't know what the nurses were doing to her when she was in hospital when the nurses gave her too much morphine which stopped her heart and caused her death. My brother wanted to be healed but a doctor decided to turn off machines before he was completely cured of pneumonia. My son agrees to everything when he is out of sorts because he doesn't understand what is being presented to him. I think this is a very very dangerous bill. It is not necessary. A person will die when their body gives up. Leave it that way please otherwise you are trying to play God and Australia will become a dictatorship, killing off the vulnerable at every whim of whomever decides to kill someone off just for their money etc.
