I am a Queenslander and I believe there are much more important issues to address such as youth crime and violence. I support native wildlife conservation and do not want to see conservation efforts of the last 40 or so years reversed.

I wish to see native wildlife conservation crocodile protection since 1971 to continue and keep educating and signage so humans and crocodiles live in harmony. Commencement of culling would quickly endanger the species once again and believe hunting will begin to take place even illegally, if laws change. For example, shark attacks and even dog attacks are more common. Queensland already has a very satisfactory way of handling crocodiles and parks and wildlife services respond and remove them if needed. The fatality rate is very low and not enough to justify further killing of crocodiles in their own habitat. Queensland lose many more people to domestic violence, fatal car accidents from dangerous driving, and youth crime. Thank you for the opportunity to comment.
