As a mother and teacher I have been concerned about the rising numbers of crocodiles in our local area. We have seen more crocodiles in areas that have never had crocodiles. These are areas that are freshwater and a long way from the ocean. These are areas that are popular for families with children. Our lifestyle also includes fishing at the beach, however, there have been more crocodiles off shore which makes our beach or creek fishing just not safe. I firmly believe that the increasing population is only going to keep growing making our environment less safe for our children.
