A government is elected by the people to uphold and enforce the laws.

Neither is being done in Queensland.

If you repeatedly fine an operator after a cease and desist order to no avail, you must take the next step to issue demerits points.

This is evidenced in the way honing laws work.

Why has the Queensland government persisted with the 2 tier law system.

I say to the premier do the job you were elected to do and stop favouring illegality or you will be punished by voters as was your predecessor.
