The Great Barrier Reef is abundant with iconic marine life. It's within these amazing reef systems that incredible animals like sea turtles, whales and tropical fish travel and call home.

But the health of this important underwater ecosystem is under increasing threat. If it dies the natural world will have lost a unique eco system and the responsibility for this loss is on us. I asked that you as the government of the day take the necessary steps as recommended by the current science to do all that is necessary to protect the Great Barrier Reef so that it does not become the Insignifcant Minor Reef.

Sincerely
Suzanne Treagle
