I received this 45 minutes before closing, so this will be brief.

The Albanese government has increased immigration from regions that are not conducive with our Australian culture. Many see Australians as lucrative targets, infidels, and are prepared to harm or kill us in our homes without giving it a second thought. This is akin to the culture they have come from, but they are not becoming part of our communities.

The LNP government have promised us safer streets, safety in our own homes, and tough penalties on youth crime. You have made inroads into the latter part, but they remain brazen. We should never face prosecution or jail for defending ourselves in our own homes. I am now over 60 and I am concerned that I could not defend myself against these criminals. I don't want to die at the hands of criminals because of your inaction in this matter. Please keep your word to the people of Queensland and give us Castle Law. If you look back at the history of law in Queensland, I know you will find that at one time, we had this right. It was watered down progressively over many years. Why should an innocent grandfather or grandmother die in jail because they defended their home or their family against African immigrants who want to rob, violate, or kill them?

If I had more time, I would have prepared a proper submission.
