I fully support this bill being passed in parliament. As parents, we are fully responsible for the safety of our children who are unable to protect themselves. Children are naive and rely solely on their parents and other responsible adults to keep them safe. This online register allows parents and family members to check if local known offenders live close by to children that are at risk, and be more vigilant in the protection of those children. Children deserve to live in a world where they are able to play outside, live freely and happily without increased risks of living next to an unknown criminally convicted sex offender. Currently, these sex offenders have more rights than the parents and children that they live amongst. This bill being passed gives the power back to the parents to then make decisions on where we live and send our children to school safely. If you have broken the law, and are a danger to children and on the sex offenders register, you should not have the right to anonymity. You have forfeited that right when you committed the heinous crimes you were found guilty of.
