The proposed bill is most certainly positive for community no doubt however, parents and legal guardians and carers and the Family Law Act are root cause issues that continue to be dismissed. Children who grow up within the system are categorically more at risk of offending and its the lack of framework around parental responsibility and accountability that must be addressed.

Parents of children must be brought to account for their childrens actions especially when it comes.to damage or theft or assault. There should be a clear threshold of responsibility. Food for thought.
