Good Morning, I wrote to the Premier (then the opposition leader) some two years ago regarding the disgusting crime rate in this state. I suggested at that time for you to consider putting boot camps onto your ticket as a means to try and retrain these offending kids. There are several areas in Queensland that would be suitable to set up these camps and have them run by retired Sargeant Majors. One that comes immediately to mind is the wellcamp in Toowoomba built at excessive cost to the Queensland taxpayer and to my knowledge not being used for anything. There are also many other areas that could be considered and I am sure you would be aware of these. You have set a precedent with your adult time for adult crime so surely you could look to expand this legislation. Thank you.
