To the Committee,

At a time when unprecedented emphasis is being placed on the affordability of housing, the Crisafulli Government appears intent on aligning itself closely with private property developers.

I urge the Committee to reassess these proposed changes to our electoral laws, as they lack any semblance of fairness. History has shown repeatedly that the primary interests of these commercial entities divest from the needs of the Queensland public.

Property developers should play no part in our state elections. They have demonstrated time and again that their interests are served at the expense of the community, rather than in service to Queensland.

At a time we hope to see integrity from our leaders, we have been let down.
