I vehemently disagree with most elements of this bill.

a) I strongly disagree that prisoners facing detention should be stripped of their voting privileges. Our robust and representative voting process is the cornerstone of our civil participation in Queensland and Australia. Stripping anyone of their right to vote is a dire step and in this circumstance is dangerous and unnecessary.

b) I strongly disagree with expanding allowances for political donations from property developers. Queensland citizens are already struggling with housing affordability, particularly in the Southeast corner. Allowing property developers further powers to influence our political process in these circumstances to enrich themselves is crude and works against the long-term cohesiveness of our community.

c) I agree with the changes to disclosure of political materials.
