I'm a licensed firearm owner, veteran and conservation hunter.

I volunteer my time to many farms, bringing down the costs for the consumer that would occur with pests running rampant or farmers being forced to get professional hunters who are quite expensive due to government regulations.

I am thoroughly impressed with Queensland's response to the bondi shooting, this is far better than the other states, and isn't going to waste heaps of taxpayer funds on a buy"back".

Actually addressing the problem and not treating us LAFO as terrorists for the actions of someone who shouldn't have even had a license under the original laws.

Thank you.
