I would like to applaud the Qld state government for its common sense approach to the current proposed firearm laws review/reforms. I am a licenced, responsible firearms owner who uses multiple calibre firearms for feral pest control on my property and also allow select others to shoot pigs, feral cats, wild dogs etc on my property.

I believe other states and the federal government have taken a "knee jerk" political grandstanding position that in no way addresses the issue at hand in relation to the Bondi terrorist attack.

I support this Queensland government's logical and considered approach to the current proposed firearm law changes.
