To all,

There are dangerous pieces of this bill which try to deny citizens the right to appeal decisions.

It is really important for democracy and the future, and also to protect ourselves from disgruntled public servants, that all government decisions, especially ones that can have huge life consequences to people, can be looked at by the courts if there are errors made (for example, mistaken identity, bribery or personal interest by a public servant, etc)

It is essential that parts like those on page 152 (Application of the Judicial Review Act) are removed.
