To whom it may concern

I understand that

On March 27th the new Attorney General, Yvette D'Ath, tabled a bill that will among other things...

- *reinstate the $1,000 gift threshold amount, backdated to 21 November 2013;
- *remove voter proof of identity requirements; and
- *remove voter proof of identity requirements for local government elections;

Removing voter proof of identity requirements seems suspicious. Does Qld Labor want to return to the idea of people voting with other people's identities??

The $1,000 gift threshold is too low and fails to provide unified rules between Federal and State.
