Please retain the current requirement for voters to provide proof of identity before casting their vote.

This requirement is widely accepted by the community, and is needed to ensure the integrity of the electoral system by minimizing the possibility of voter fraud.

In the past I understand that even members of parliament were using the deceased persons names to get someone else to vote for the deceased person as it then took several days before the deceased person's name was removed from the Electoral roll. I personally think removing the requirement for proof of identity when casting a vote is looking for trouble. It should in fact be stronger rather than just an electricity bill as ID
