I have only heard this morning that the Labor party is putting this bill to parliament to get rid of proof of identity when voting. The very fact this bill is being put forward without consultation sums up why it shouldn't be changed. Past years many 'dead' voted and we are now in a world where proof of identity is required everywhere, voting is no different. Without proof of identity we are taking a step backwards and leaving the system open to fraudulent behaviour. Integrity of the voting system must be upheld
