I believe it is entirely inappropriate to attempt to introduce laws that add a level of restriction to the peoples RIGHT to vote. Voter fraud cannot be shown to be at a level that warrants the introduction of additional means of identification in order to register your vote. I believe these laws are intended to limit access for certain groups in our community who the present government has determined are not their constituents.

The next thing we will be asked to do is dip our finger in indelible ink.

I believe Mr Bleije to be an extreme right wing ideologue and someone whose ambitions need to be curtailed, he has introduced draconian laws against freedom of association and has made all public health system mental health wards "locked" so that even people who are outpatients do not have freedom of movement in and out. I see this proposal as yet another of his extreme ideological gambits as he worms his way towards the premiers job.
