Subject: Don't change ID laws for election

I think any laws which force the tightening of ID requirements when people attend elections will disadvantage certain members of our community, namely indigenous people, the elderly, young people and people who have literacy issues. This idea has been floated before and it seems to me there is an agenda here to make it more difficult for certain people to have their say therefore ensuring an advantage towards the LNP. This borders on Fascism and we must be vigilant as this current government has shown a propensity towards laws which disadvantage certain groups from the community over others in the LNP's own interests. It is not necessary to introduce these laws.
