Q5: Do you think that human rights are properly protected in Queensland? Why/why not?

The existence of utterly despicable abusive and parasitic entities like QCAT, the Adult Guardian, the Public Trustee and the Department of Child Safety are all the proof needed that most definitely NOT protected in Queensland, and that no progress can be made until or unless all of the aforementioned entities are both properly supervised by a genuinely independent (dictionary rather than political / bureaucratic meaning) entity with bloody big teeth. Those watchdogs which presently exist have no teeth whatever and even if they did, the totally immunity granted to QCAT, the Adult Guardian, the Public Trustee and the Department of Child Safety renders even an effective watchdog useless. To add insult to injury, the pitiful 2% inquiry rate of Queensland watchdogs proves conclusively that they are merely a rubber stamp for bureaucrats. I notice that QCAT has been proposed as being given native jurisdiction over the proposed human rights legislation. If this is done it will render the human rights act totally farcical. One only needs to look at the Victorian and ACT implementations to see the problems caused by their equally evil maxi-tribunals / kangaroo courts / star chambers.

Q6: Do you support the introduction of a Human Rights Act in Queensland? Why/why not?

Yes but only on the provision that QCAT and its associates are not allowed within a thousand kilometers of the human rights act. QCAT must not be given any authority or jurisdiction, in fact provision must be made to prevent any future government from assigning any authority or jurisdiction to QCAT or its successors.

Q7: Can you think of a situation from your life or someone else's life that shows why Queensland needs a Human Rights Act?

I'm personally acquainted with numerous situations in which actions of QCAT, the Adult Guardian, the Public Trustee and the Department of Child Safety demonstrated an urgent need for a human rights act to protect victims of these odious entities against their ill-conceived actions. Mind you the legislation ostensibly regulating these entities
