Subject: RE: Police Powers and Responsibilities (Motor Vehicle Impoundment) Amendment Bill 2011

Hi Gail,

Re - reference 11.1.10.c

Thank you for sending me this email regarding changes to the Police Powers and Responsibilities (Motor Vehicle Impoundment) Amendment Bill 2011.

The proposed amendments seem to be quite reasonable and obviously necessary to allow the Police to do their job in controlling hoon driving behaviour which appears to be getting out of hand all over Australia.
As you may be aware, Dobadriver was established to allow anyone a mechanism for reporting inconsiderate and reckless behaviour for everyone else to see.
Hoon driving is one of those incidents and one which places good people in a helpless situation as evident from various Media reports.
By reporting the hooning incidents to Dobadriver their antics are presented for everyone to see (without their knowledge), giving those affected by this behaviour some form of control. The driver of the vehicles involved should and hopefully will be held to account for their actions. The hope is that a deterrent factor will develop thereby making them think about the consequences of this kind of behaviour in the future.

I'm not quite sure if you only require me to comment on this Bill or if you wish me to present the content of this PDF on the Dobadriver site for others to see and present submissions.

I am only too happy to add a reference on my site if you so wish.

Please advise.

regards
