Men are animals, hopefully of a higher order, but never-the-less they are males. No matter what type of animal, it is the will of nature that males exist to breed. When a female dresses to excite (and by that I mean the exposing of the breasts, the wearing of a prostitute outfit, strings up their bums, pants so tight they're revealing) males should not penalised for addressing nature's call. I can understand why Muslims have a strict dress code because our women have none - they have lost all sense of decency. If they don't want to attract the attention of males don't dress to entice.
