Facts should not be confused with feelings. My date of birth is a fact and I cannot change it to a day I would have liked it to have been. The place where I was born is a fact and I cannot change it to where I wish I was born. My sex is either male or female and I cannot change it. Saying that I feel like I identify with a different sex does not change my sex. As a female, I am not physically safe in a place designated for females only if males who wish to identify as females are given free access.
