In other countries they have turned away from Self ID because the dangers that come with it however in Australia some states are pushing through with these new laws. There doesn't seem to be any safeguards put into place and anyone can change what sex they are on their birth certificate. In Victoria we have already seen a male identifying as a female, who had been convicted of sexual assaults, now resides in a women's prison. When people complained about the situation. Those in power said they couldn't do anything about it and this male is still in the female prison. Men can not be woman and will never know or understand the complex nature of being a woman. Why do woman have to lose rights, freedom of speech and single sex spaces just to make men happy? I thought we moved past all this and the fact that woman have fought so hard for their freedoms, just for those in power to do their best to take them away. I want to have the right to live in a female only house and not have to worry about a man pushing his way in because he says he is a woman.
