Submitter Comments:

I volunteer for a few clubs, mainly those involved with the competition horse industry. These clubs often apply for government grants, which is wonderful when they are successful as most clubs couldn't manage without them. Grants are mainly aimed at improving facilities for a club but it would be good if extra money were made available on club working bee days for food and refreshments for the volunteer workers. These people often travel long distances and give up paid work to attend . When a break is taken for all to have a meal and chat it develops friendships and comrade within the club , this strengthens the clubs
