Personal electric vehicles (PEV's) are the future, I myself ride an electric skateboard and electric unicycle daily for my commute to work and occasional group rides with friends. PEV's should be a thing we consider as a legitimate mode of transition such as bikes, they are very capable when ridden safely. Personally I believe incorporating them into our bike lanes is a good move and moving away from foot paths is the safest option as pedestrians can be unpredictable and it would be a calculated risk to use the bike path.
