I think these e-bikes need to be regulated. The e-bike rider should have to have a learners permit to operate one. If you are going to ride on the road, you need to prove you know the road rules like a person operating a vehicle needs too. Children (who don't know how dangerous they can be) are making silly decisions before they are mature enough to know to slow down. It's dangerous to be on a footpath when they come flying along at speed. They should be band or at the very least learners permit required and lose points and fined if found to ride dangerously.
