E- bikes need to be treated just like any other motor vehicle that uses the public roads or public footpaths with relevant licensing and CTP insurance. The responsibility needs to be on the operator of the bike. My 3 year old child was learning to ride her pushbike on a footpath at a coastal pathway, she was doing so well until an E bike came across the grassed area and collided with her. The incident was 100% the E bike riders fault. Luckily she fell away from the incident with only minor injuries, This time?
