My wife and I walk six days a week around Cotton Tree Park, Maroochydore and Alexandra Headlands. It's getting to the stage where the paths are not safe for the general walking public. Every day we experience the situation where motorised scooters and bikes etc weaving between the walkers along the pathway. To make it worse, you can't hear them coming and quite often people are startled by the motorised bike or scooter. The majority of the people using these pathways are retirees living in the surrounding apartments. This greatly adds to the risk of serious accidents occurring. Thank you, Rod Forrester
