I am against the riding of e-bikes and scooters on the Cotton tree pathway where my husband and I walk every morning, along with a number of elderly folk. On a number of occasions they come whizzing past, narrowly missing us, or our grandchildren who are with us occasionally. I think this is very dangerous as they don't seem to slow down or care about the elderly walking. Maybe a separate pathway should be built or they should be made to ride on the bike lane on the road, particularly when they travel at high speeds, and some without a helmet on. Also coming out of our driveway, I am very careful as I could accidentally hit one by not seeing them, so safety for them as well.
