It is concerning driving a car how fast some rides are getting up to whilst wearing at times almost zero safety clothing, I regularly get overtaken by e scooters doing at least 50kph on main roads. Their visibility is also an issue especially at dawn and dusk, and they very easily creep up on you. Also if they are to hit you, without any licensing or insurance requirements of a scooter you are likely to be liable. It seems to speed limits set in law are simply ignored, and just to the scale of their operations it's very difficult for it to be policed. Sadly people continue to die by the usage of these devices .
