I regularly ride my e-scooter to work. I take it on the Citycat and ride safely, wearing a helmet and abide by the road rules. The only speed signs I encounter are on the Goodwill Bridge. There are none on the bikeways where I routinely get overtaken by cyclists. Pedestrians cause the most dangerous encounters I have- they spread out to talk and randomly and suddenly walk in a different direction- usually straight in front of me. I support paying a small registration to cover third party insurance. Scooters are convenient and CAN be used safely. Not all scooter riders are cowboys!
