With reference to e-scooters, The problem is the riders of these scooters are young and have no regard for or obey the road rules, are not licensed or insured and are not registered. After a number of fatalities, the quickest and easiest way to fix this problem is to totally ban these scooters from our streets and footpaths, but the government isn't tough enough to do so. As a car and motorcycle owner who is licensed, pays insurance, registration (at an exorbitant cost) and fuel tax. Quick and easy solution to this problem, if an e-scooter rider breaks any of the road rules which include:- Riding without a helmet Doubling Speeding Riding on footpaths Riding in the wrong direction against the flow of traffic Dangerous operation Causing an accident or injury If the rider is guilty of any of these, Confiscate and Destroy the scooter! If these unlicensed and uninsured riders knew the penalty for their reckless operation, they may obey the rules! Regards
