What is going on in Australia is absolutely an abomination. First Victoria burns and helicopter culls is creatures, and now you're gonna do the same thing. For what? A new Olympic Park? I came to Australia in 1997 to see koalas. Luckily I did at Lone Pine and the Woolshed, which is long gone now. I fell in love with the Glasshouse Mountains. And I fear the Sunshine Coast is gonna be razed. Brisbane is a beautiful city. Why does it need to have a huge Olympic venue built? Will it ever be used again? Maybe for footy or cricket. Our Olympic Park in Lake Placid has been getting used religiously every year since those Olympic Games. It's a top destination in winter here in NYS. You are losing touch with what people really want to see. You have the most diverse and unique animals and they should be protected at all costs. I've seen how you have repurposed other buildings, yet they still have their original class. That's a starting point. Please think wisely. And consider what this does to the animals and their habitats. Thank you.
