The idea of ruining our state and the future eco-tourism it is able to bring in, purely for the hope to impress olympic audiences is a stupid one, and one that has been made by nearly every hosting city for the past 50yrs. Ruining landscapes, the environment, safety regulations, all to build a few building to fall into disrepair and to be added to the long list of 'abandoned olympic venues'.

Even if, in the unlikely event these new stadiums have a use in the future, myself and many others cannot see the point in enabling the further destruction and unsettling of our ecosystems and environment for the sake of more stadiums for a small bump in tourism funds, at the sake of future potential tourism earnings after we have paved the way to devastate our countries natural wealth and beauty.

For your consideration,
Justin Kuhnel
