I believe that the banning of devices used to help train and protect dogs will lead to the death of more dogs through euthanasia and more harmful behaviour to humans, livestock and wildlife. My own personal pet has benefitted from properly fitted devices that protect her and others and allow me to work with qualified trainers to get the best from my dog. Without access to these training tools, like prong collars, there will be many more untrained, anxious and aggressive dogs. Please speak to properly qualified people before you make these changes. My 18 month old designer, fluffy dog would have been likely a bite risk or put down by now had it not been for access to these training tools/devices at the advice of well qualified trainers.
