Banning prong collars is an ill conceived idea put forward by people who have no understanding of responsible dog ownership. Yes it does look a bit scary when you don't know what it is and how it works. I invite you to put on a prong collar on yourself and try it. (I did!) Then try a choke chain that is sold for $5 in every pet store. Once you have had this experience it will be very clear to you that the prong collar is the safer, kinder option. These collars are an open important training tool, that should remain available to Australian dog owners.
