

Inquiry into the Animal Care and Protection Amendment Bill 2022

Submission No: 551
Submitted by: Mike Callanan
Publication: Make my submission and my name public
Attachments: No attachment

Submitter Comments:

An overwhelming number of Australia's native faunal species are facing serious rates of decline, in some cases catastrophic. The main problem with glue traps is that they do not discriminate between target pest animals and vulnerable native animals. For that reason alone they need to be banned or at least modified to eliminate damage done to native species. The traps also lead to the cruel and inhumane injury and deaths of targeted pest animals. For these two reasons they need to be banned.