Submitter Comments:

Bully breeds are only dangerous when bred to be dangerous. I have grown up with American staffies, English staffies and currently own a red nose pit bull cross staffy. He's is so gentle with people and other pets out side of our property, he does protect his territory (our property) but only when people come near our fence he will bark. He has never shown any form or aggression to people we bring around him and I have 3 young kids he plays with, he has never growled or barked at them. All he wants is to be loved and near people. Owners need to held responsible not the breed. People create monsters in there's breeds they aren't born aggressive!
