Submitter Comments:

Dogs are not dangerous and in fact it is the owners who need to learn how to better equip themselves with animals who may have a strong nature compared to other breeds. Some dogs come from a long history of abuse and that may be embedded into their nature, yet humans come from the same background and what humans need is love and compassion to grow and dogs should be awarded the same rights. It is all about the nature in which we grow up in and who is willing to do the work. We wouldn't put down humans and therefore we need to protect these wonderful dogs and start looking at owners behaviours and skills before assuming a dog is unsafe.
