For the sake of our beautiful town, and future-proofing it, development companies MUST be held accountable and required to financially support public infrastructure. I, like many others, love Brisbane, but disproportionally increasing the density of living, and not the busways, bike paths, bridges, GREEN SPACES, and community areas to go with it will make people more stressed and life for the every-person harder. Please, do this for future generations of Brisbane. It will hopefully make the ultra-wealthy developers think about their financial obligations (if not their moral/societal obligations) at the very least before they cram "luxury apartments" into every last corner of our city.
