

Supermarket Pricing Inquiry

Submission No: 45
Submitted by: [REDACTED]
Publication: Making the submission public but withholding your name
Attachments: No attachment

Submitter Comments:

It has always been frustrating to have to waste food when you have small children at school. All the wasted fruit and sandwiches is bad enough when most of the world doesn't have enough food. Now though, it's absolutely crushing. It's so hard to protect the children, making out everything is okay and that I want them to eat their food to get strong, and not because I can't afford to throw calories in the bin. Any meal that is wasted has to be made up for at the end of the day and I don't know how many more tricks I have up my sleeve to create food I can afford and that they'll eat. The strain of this going on for so long, keeping my worries away from the children, is really taking a toll. Basic cleaning supplies have also become something that we really have to be very tactical about. All this energy and worry takes away from our family time and our peace.