Due to the reporting cycles and when data is available, quarterly performance meetings are usually scheduled for six to eight weeks after the quarter has ended to ensure data accuracy and robust discussions.

Due to the height of the COVID pandemic, the last two quarters official performance meetings have been delayed, however the Department of Health continues to meet with representatives from the HHSs to discuss performance issues and offer assistance if required.

Quarter One performance meetings for 2022-23 are expected to revert to normal reporting scheduling.
