FOREWORD

The daylight saving referendum conducted on 22 February 1992 was the seventh State-initiated referendum conducted since the establishment of the Queensland Parliament. Queenslanders voted at a federation referendum in 1899, a religious instruction referendum in 1910, on the question of abolishing the Legislative Council in 1917, at two prohibition referendums in 1920 and 1923, and more recently, at a referendum held in conjunction with local government elections on 23 March, 1991 seeking to extend parliamentary terms from three to four years. Only the 1899 and 1910 referendums were resolved in the affirmative.

The conduct of the daylight saving referendum saw the introduction of three major electoral reforms recommended by the Electoral and Administrative Review Commission: the use of the joint Commonwealth/State electoral roll together with the extension of the franchise to more Queenslanders, and the introduction for administrative purposes of the new electoral districts created by EARC during the redistribution of electoral boundaries in 1991.

Whilst the use of the Commonwealth/State roll and the new electoral districts provided tight deadlines and introduced a number of unique problems, the referendum provided the Electoral Commission with an excellent opportunity to resolve a number of operational and administrative difficulties before the next general election.

The distribution of the "Yes/No" arguments and the information and education program designed to inform electors of their new electoral districts proved an interesting challenge and was, by all reports, very successful. There was a noticeable increase in the level of electoral awareness throughout Queensland during the campaign.

It was disappointing that some sections of the community considered the referendum an unnecessary indulgence and a waste of taxpayers' money. The division of the vote in the Legislative Assembly on the question of a daylight saving referendum indicated that the issue of daylight saving divided Queenslanders as no other single issue has done. The issue was one which recommended itself to a direct appeal to the people of Queensland for resolution.

At the close of rolls on 22 January, 1,835,727 electors were enrolled and were eligible to vote. By close of polling on 22 February, 89.56% of electors had voted with 99.56% of those recording a valid vote.

I wish to place on record my sincere thanks to the staff of the Electoral Commission who worked long hours under adverse circumstances to enable the referendum to be conducted as efficiently as possible.

BACKGROUND

Daylight saving, the practice of rescheduling the day by advancing the clock by a specified time to prolong evening daylight, was first suggested by Benjamin Franklin in 1784.

The idea was popularised with the publication in 1908 of William Willet's Waste of Daylight and the practice was introduced to conserve fuel during wartime in Germany (1915), Britain (1916), and in Australia and the United States in 1917.

Daylight saving was re-introduced in all Australian states during World War II and operated during summertime in 1942, 1942-1943, and 1943-1944 (except Western Australia).

From 1945 to 1967 the question of re-introducing daylight saving on a more permanent basis was addressed on a number of occasions by individual States and at Premiers' Conference level.

Tasmania introduced daylight saving in 1967-68 and agreement was subsequently reached to trial daylight saving from October 1971 to February, 1972 in the ACT and all States except Western and South Australia. All States except Queensland, and Western Australia and the Northern Territory subsequently adopted daylight saving.

A trial re-introduction of daylight saving was considered by the Queensland cabinet in August, 1989 and a Bill providing for a trial daylight saving period from 29 October, 1989 to 4 March, 1990 received royal assent on 18 September, 1989.

Cabinet resolved that a daylight saving task force be established to monitor the 1989-90 trial and report to Government by 30 April, 1990 on all aspects of the test and whether daylight saving should continue to be observed in future years.

The task force reported on 27 April, 1990 recommending that daylight saving be introduced for that part of the State east of 151° east longitude for the period adopted by other States; that the scheme continue for a further two years' trial and review; and that a referendum be taken on the issue at the end of the two year trial.

Following a debate in the Legislative Assembly on 26 November 1991, the motion that a referendum be held on the question of daylight saving was resolved in the affirmative (Ayes 43, Noes 40). The writ for the conduct of the referendum was issued on 16 January, 1992 and Saturday 22 February, 1992 was specified as polling day.

DAYLIGHT SAVING?

Consider the cases

On Saturday 22nd February, 1992 a Referendum will be held and all Queensland electors will be asked the question "Are you in favour of Daylight Saving"

This brochure contains THE "YES" CASE AND THE "NO" CASE.

Queenslanders... time to consider

THE “YES” CASE

1. Since 1972, the eastern states of Australia, excluding Queensland, have operated on daylight saving time each summer. Queensland has only participated in daylight saving since 1989. Since this time, many of the difficulties experienced by the business community in the period when there was a time difference between the eastern states, such as communication difficulties and operating inefficiencies arising from the need to accommodate the different trading times, have diminished.

It has been indicated by businesses operating in south-east Queensland, where the majority of businesses are based, that:-

- * over 75% of these businesses favour daylight saving;
- * nearly 90% believe that all the eastern states should operate on the same time; and
- * nearly 40% of businesses expect to suffer losses if daylight saving were abolished.

As daylight saving is seen as a means of promoting commercial efficiency, then it is therefore in the best interests of the State for it to continue.

2. Daylight saving gives you more useable outdoor leisure time at the end of the day during summer. This allows people to spend more time with their families and friends and in the pursuit of recreational and leisure activities.

3. Daylight saving can save energy because more natural light is used during the latter part of the day. This can have consequent cost savings for the community and can be beneficial for the environment if less electricity is consumed.

The Queensland Electricity Commission reports that there is a noticeable reduction in electricity demand during daylight saving in the peak period of 6.00 p.m. and 8.00 pm. each day.

4. When Queensland operates on the same time as the other eastern states, the tourist and travel industries benefit through not having to alter the schedules and itineraries of tourists and business people travelling to Queensland from interstate and overseas.

Likewise the airlines, railways and bus operators do not have to alter their timetables to accommodate different time zones between the eastern states.

Businesses associated with the tourist and hospitality industries may also benefit from the increased daylight leisure time available to their potential customers.

THE “NO” CASE

Queensland is such a vast State that the actual hours of sunlight vary considerably between different parts of it. Daylight saving has an adverse impact on Queensland lifestyles and businesses because of this basic geographical fact.

Daylight saving is not in the best interests of Queenslanders for the following reasons:

1. Queensland has a typical tropical to sub-tropical climate with the average maximum temperature in any area of the State in January ranging from 30 to 42 degrees celsius.

The sun already rises and sets up to one hour later in the northern and western areas of the State, as these areas are located west of the geographical line at which standard time for Queensland is determined.

2. During daylight saving, many people throughout the State who have to travel considerable distances to work or to school have to leave home while it is still dark.

3. For school children, daylight saving also means that they finish school in the hottest part of the day, whereas they would normally still be in the classroom at the time when the sun's harmful ultra violet (UV) rays are at their most intense.

4. Businesses throughout the State need to operate on the same time as Brisbane in order to maintain contact with suppliers. With daylight saving time, many businesses are not able to service the needs of customers and clients who require access to goods and services during the latter part of the day.

5. For many elderly people daylight saving is an inconvenience requiring changes to daily living routines.

6. For many people, daylight saving means a denial of the opportunity to access their only source of daily news and current affairs, particularly through evening television programmes.

7. Many local authorities are opposed to daylight saving because it interferes with established work practices.

8. Rural industries and some sections of the tourism industry are significantly disadvantaged due to the reduction in the amount of early morning daylight hours available in which to complete critical tasks.

9. The quality of life suffers for many families in the State during periods of daylight saving because of:

* Meal times - particularly the evening meal - being delayed because it is too hot to prepare and eat meals at normal times.

This imposes an increased burden on the parents of young children as it puts the children out of their familiar daily routine, upsetting both study and sleeping patterns.

* Many people whose hours of work are determined by available sunlight tend to work later in the day during daylight saving. This increases stress on families through less parental contact with children.

* A reduction in the opportunities available for those people who work later in the day to participate in evening community activities.

10. There is no evidence that the majority of Queenslanders benefit from daylight saving. Rather the minority benefit and the majority suffer a reduced quality of life.

11. There are already three time zones in Australia. Queenslanders and the various industries who operate across time zones have always managed to overcome any difficulties involved. Any perceived disadvantages in this regard are far outweighed by the disadvantages suffered by a majority of Queenslanders during daylight saving periods.
